The Electric Truck

Is rapidly coming to the front for hauling purposes in cities with fairly level streets. A five-ton electric truck will travel easily at the rate of ten miles per hour, while a horse-drawn outfit of the same capacity will not do better than four miles per hour. Thus, with an electric truck, you can do two and one-half times as much work as a horse-drawn vehicle of the same capacity. The electric truck does not require a mechanic for a driver; the same man who drives the horse team can run the truck.

The cost for electricity for charging ranges from $40.00 to $60.00 per month for such a truck. The feed, shoeing and stable expenses for a four-horse outfit ranges from $30.00 to $100.00 per month, and the price for feed and horses is rapidly increasing. Electric trucking costs less, therefore, than any other form of transportation, and does more work.

Let our representative call and give you further particulars.
